

Top Neurologist Blows Whistle: 'ADHD Does Not Exist, It Was Invented To Hook Kids on Drugs'

Fact checked by The People's Voice Community

Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) does not exist and was invented by Big Pharma in conspiracy with government regulatory agencies to hook young and vulnerable children on lucrative psychiatric drugs, according to leading American behavioral biologist Dr. Richard Saul.

"After 50 years of practising medicine and seeing thousands of patients demonstrating symptoms of ADHD, I have reached the conclusion there is no such thing as ADHD," explains Dr. Saul.

"This so-called condition has apparently spread like wildfire across the globe in recent years, with a huge increase in its diagnosis and medication," Dr Saul continued. "More than 4 per cent of adults and 11 per cent of children in the U.S. have been diagnosed with ADHD."

We all have scatterbrained moments where we struggle to get organized, zone out, or have an angry outburst – all signs of ADHD. Many assume medication's the answer, which explains the uptick in children being treated.

However, a new report was released by Express Scripts last month that revealed an alarming statistic: Between 2008 and 2012, the number of Americans who use medication to treat ADHD rose 36 percent.

Are the Signs of ADHD Actually Signs of Other Issues?

"In my view, not a single individual is afflicted by the disorder called ADHD as we define it today," says Dr. Richard Saul, M.D., behavioral neurologist and author of "ADHD Does Not Exist."

Signs of ADHD are related to more than 20 medical diagnoses (such as poor eyesight, sleep deprivation, and bipolar disorder) and when they're treated, the attention-deficit and hyperactivity symptoms disappear.

"We define this 'illness' by its symptoms, rather than its cause," he explains. "Nasal congestion can be a symptom of a cold, allergy, or many other conditions, but a runny nose is not a diagnosis." His book is causing quite the uproar in the medical community, as well as with people who have ADHD.

Regardless of whether you agree with him or not, the firestorm the book is creating is nothing but good: We'll now go to our physicians with a greater awareness to make sure we're being treated for the actual issue, and not the symptoms of the issue.

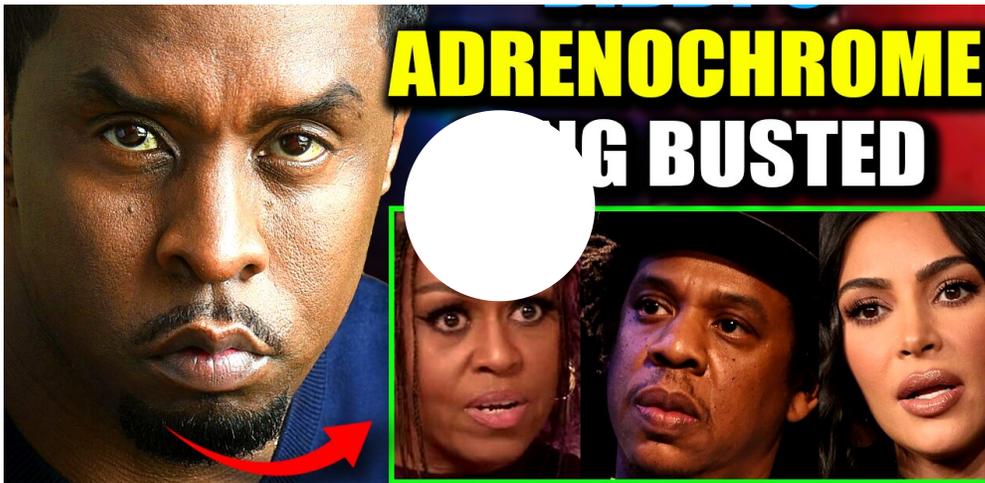

The one thing I'm sure we can all agree on was put best in the Express Scripts study:

"The trends here signal a need to look more closely at how and why physicians prescribe these medications for adults and the need for prescribers to fully assess the entire psychosocial landscape of an individual patient prior to reaching for the prescription pad."

There's never been a time where we're as distracted as we are now: Our everyday technology makes us feel like we're missing out if we're not paying attention to a million things at once, and we ladies are already suckers for multi-tasking. Sigh. Sadly, the increase in ADHD medication usage didn't surprise me at all.

It's time we open the dialogue and shift our way of (unfocused) thinking toward the possibility that one day it might be called "the disorder formerly known as ADHD."

Wow...I said this 20 years ago working in the office of an elementary school assigned the job of handing out meds to perfectly normal children. Got fired for saying this. Too many lazy teachers and frustrated parents think kids should never be hyper, angry or sad or wild. These were bright normal kids brainwashed to think there was something wrong with them. They were just kids!!!

FACT:

67% of medical studies cannot be replicated.

So, Medical doctors were always tools and quacks selling snake oil for their big pharma masters.

The US medical system is emergency medicine. The ONLY doctors which may be able to help you are those used for emergencies, (because emergency medicine is to be used for emergencies, only), holistic doctors, and naturopathic doctors. The drug pushing MDs can't help with healthcare because there is no such thing as a pharma drug deficiency disease. FYI... MDs are No.3 cause of death in USA due to mistakes, and they admit it themselves, which means they know nothing about health or care. For emergency use, only.

The Globalists who own/control Big Pharma need to be eradicated!

It's already happening behind the curtains...the arrest of that bastard (Diddy) it's only the start of the show. Just look on how fast celebrities are deleting their past messages on social networks and how politician's and CEO's are resigning! This is the start of something very big. Pandora's box is opened.

Lets hope so, but the same things were being said about PizzaGate and Epstein. That was all swept under the rug.

"...for by thy sorceries (pharmakia is the word in the orig. Greek text; it means witchcraft/sorcery) were all nations deceived." Rev. 18:23. God told us the truth about satanic poison pharma long, long ago. So sad to many still are deceived & believe it is "medicine" that restores health. It's been lies & fraud from pharma all along. Crimes against humanity = execution.

Clickbait article to gaslight lay people. The biggest and best studies were done before "Dr." Saul was even in practice and there was no big pharma. WTF is a behavioral neurologist? This is not a psychiatrist If anyone should know pre-frontal cortex function it would be a neurologist and the case of Phineus Gage and what happens when frontal lobe function is compromised. There is always one or two outliers that don't believe in this or that. How else would we have fringe groups/sects? Unfortunately with the ease of getting one's voice heard no matter how crazy it is, is todays norm. Crap like this would be the ramblings of "experts" at the local bar. Now you can get your ludicrous ramblings published.

Big pharma was not involved in the original studies performed in the 1970s at academic institutions
