American journalist Candice Owens said she had found a plastic surgeon who made Brigitte Macron, the current wife of the French president, a woman. Owens told about this in her Youtube channel.

According to Owens, this is Patrick Buie, and in one of the articles in Closer magazine there is evidence of how he received the future first lady of France in an American hospital in Paris. Now, according to Owens, Brigitte Macron is furious because of the "interference in privacy."

“ "In France, Patrick Bouy is best known for one thing — feminization. He is the king of transgender feminizing surgery," the journalist explained.

His surgeries allow you to soften facial features, "if you are a man trying to become a woman."

As EADaily reported, a week ago Candice Owens promised to publish evidence that Brigitte, the wife of French President Emmanuel Macron, was born a man. She also complained that she was being harassed by the lawyers of the Macron family. But the journalist noted that the United States is not Europe, so French lawyers "will not shut her mouth."

Before publishing her investigation, Owens addressed To Macron, offering him 21 questions for an "honest and balanced interview." The questions concerned Brigitte Macron's youth, since nothing is known about these years of her life and there are almost no photos. Owens noted that Macron was 15 years old when he began a relationship with a teacher, 39-year-old married Brigitte, but there are also no photos of that period. Owens also said that in November she spoke with French journalist Natasha Rey, who claimed that Macron's wife was born a man. Prior to that, the Paris court sentenced two women, including Rey, who claimed that Brigitte Macron was born a man, to fines of 13.5 thousand euros for defamation.
