

Silenus 14 minutes ago

Smells like a false flag with FBI kerosene.

Exactly right. I posted this elsewhere, but I'll put it here too, since this would explain why the FBI would make up such a story or set up such a false flag and then tell the bogus story:

The elites are trying to gin up a moral panic about evildoing communists targeting the precious wonderful captains of finance and big tech.

Communism does suck, but our system is awful, and isn't even really capitalism. And these modern day "captains of industry" (of tech and finance) are major supporters of tyrannical surveillance and anti-national policies like mass immigration.

These elites, who aren't even capitalists but rather more like top apparatchiks of the system, are trying to get popular support for themselves while they implement a mass control grid that monitors evermore aspects of people's lives. This is manipulation, and these elites are very clever. They're creating a story where they're the victim while they erect a surveillance apparatus that'll enable them to increase their domination of others, most of all of Americans (who have the most ability to challenge them and their machinations), and whoever opposes them are crazy communist assassins.

Don't fall for it. We don't need communism, we need real capitalism and competition and liberty, and these elites don't stand for or offer this. We have to make it for ourselves.

We need a return to true capitalism and liberty, no monopolistic, anticompetitive, surveillance-based financial tyranny where elites print free money for themselves and trade it for real property from people who need their fiat for liquidity in this bogus and rigged system.